BigDish pleased with response to UK territory management recruitment campaign

Discount dining platform operator BigDish PLC (LON:DISH) has expressed pleasure at the management recruitment campaign to support its roll-out in the UK.

BigDish has divided the United Kingdom into 10 territories, with each territory assigned a territory manager (except for London, which will have three territory managers).

"The response to our recruitment campaign has exceeded expectations," declared Sanj Naha, the chief executive officer of BigDish.

"We have a great team of new recruits joining BigDish, including OpenTable's former highest achieving salesperson for the UK and Europe. This will result in BigDish expanding its footprint across the United Kingdom," Naha said.

"So far in 2019, BigDish has been setting out the key milestones for its journey. Going forward the news flow is likely to consist of reporting on these milestones being achieved in territories added, restaurant acquisition and enhancements of our dynamic pricing technology," Naha added.
